STATINTL

1. It is the opinion of this office that the Agency may legally assume the travel expenses of new appointees, from their homes to first post of duty in the continental United States, under the following circumstances:
- If they are appointed to exempted positions (all positions in the Agency are exempted).
 - If a regulation is promulgated providing that such travel expenses are a part of the individual's compensation, and if other regulations relating to compensation are enacted accordingly.
2. As an interim measure, pending promulgation of a regulation, the approval of this memorandum by the Deputy Director (Support) will constitute authority for the Director of Personnel to enter into contractual agreements with appointees to accomplish the same purpose and, in the event of their separation from the Agency for reasons beyond their control within 120 days from their entrance on duty, to pay their travel expenses back to their homes. This delegation of authority is based upon the waiver of existing regulations respecting compensation, under the authority given the Deputy Director (Support) by [redacted] the total travel expenses assumed in any case may not exceed $6500.
3. "Travel expenses" includes the cost of transportation for the appointee and his dependents, per diem in lieu of subsistence for the appointee, and the transportation of household effects; the rates of reimbursement should be the same as those used when a Government employee is transferred within the continental United States.

4. This office would be happy to assist further in any aspect of this matter.
